[Out of Arms]

For God and country [type of Cleveland or WEIV crest]
The mottoes are not hereditary. Mottoes of other branches:

[type of grand motto!] SEMEL ET SEMPER Once and always [same type]

["] VINCIT AMOR PATRIAE Love of country conquers ["]

Per chevron sable [black] and ermine [white fur dotted with black tufts], a chevron^{ermine} counterchanged. Motto A demi old man [in other branches a Welsh man] holding in his dexter [right] hand a spear [or javelin] proper headed argent from which a line passes behind him coiled in his left hand.

Sable denotes antiquity, seldom used and never properly used to any great extent in the arms of any but very ancient families. Ermine denotes that the ancestor of the family was a judge. To throw the javelin and pull it back was an ordinary practice in the manual - at - arms of spearmen.

In Guy de Cleveland's arm mounted the spearmen at the battle of Poitiers, France A.D. The crest indicates that the arms were granted either to him or his descendant.

[Special Dispatch to The Daily Advertiser.]

ELIZABETH, Jan. 13.—Robert W.
Cleveland, a wealthy confectioner, was defendant in a suit, which occupied the afternoon before Judge Atwater yesterday. The complainant in the case was Mrs. Sophia W. Alvord, a handsome young widow and an artist.

Her claim was for $121 for services rendered as artist and nurse. Fifty dollars was for painting his portrait and the balance was for other paintings and dressing the defendant's ulcerated leg. Against this bill he claimed set-offs for the amount and $7 besides, his bill including meals, money loaned, clothing, lectures,
car fare, advice in painting, canvas, oils,
brushes, nursing plaintiff, heat, coal oil,
use of piano, sewing machine, flat-irons,
laundry and bath, and $7 over, which offset the artist's bill. Among the charges was $10 for posing for her.

Cleveland's Costly Advice.

When Mrs. Alvord undertook to paint old Elizabeth, Mr. Cleveland, who is an old resident of the city, pointed out many defects and described many pertinent parts as the city was in his boyhood days,
and for this advice a charge of $10 was made.

He also testified that he had taken her to lectures, and on several occasions to Newark and New York "to show her works of art in a big department store," which struck him as being pretty and which he fancied she could reproduce and sell to advantage. For these excursions he paid the expenses, bought the canvas and charged them to the plaintiff.

"He Did for Her, She for Him."

It appeared from the testimony of both sides that during a period of fifteen months, while the artist-widow lived in the Cleveland home each was continually doing some service for the other, as he put it: "I did for her and she did for me." The confectioner testified that for about nine months the artist attended to the dressing of an ulcerated limb and in return he gave her electrical treatment for neuralgia.

According to his testimony, he was in the habit of replenishing the widow's purse whenever he saw it empty. And another witness said Mrs. Alvord was in the habit of calling the defendant
"grand-pa."

Judge Atwater said that he was of the opinion that each had done many little services for the other, with no intention to charge for it, and that he would have to take the matter under consideration,
and reserved his decision.

EDWARD³ CLEVELAND (Edward², Moses¹).

Hicks ancestry, amended further:— John¹.|| Thomas² Hicks. [Ac. to English Baronetage printed for Tho. Wotton, London, 1741, Vol. I: 341—Pedigree of Hicks of Beverston, Gloucestershire, Eng. (William, Esquire,) created baronet July 21, 1619. Family anciently seated in Gloucestershire. It appears by a fine, temp. Edw. VI, wherein Thomas Hicks is mentioned to hold lands at Barkeley, in co. Gloucester, for which was a contest in law, but concluded by the judges, and Robert Hicks was to pay 20l. to sd. Thomas on which consideration he and his wife Margaret (daughter and heir of James Atwood and Alice his wife daughter and heir of William Payne) releas'd and quit claimed all their pretence to a certain house and lands. This Robert Hicks (presumed to have been a younger brother of above-mentioned Thomas Hicks), was a wealthy citizen and mercer of London, Eng., living in Cheapside, where, by his trade, he rais'd a considerable estate, and by Juliana, his wife, daughter of William Arthur of Clapham in Surry, Eng., Esq.; had issue, 3 sons: Sir Michael, b. 21 Octob., 35 Hen. Mr. ROBERT LUTTON⁶ CLEVELAND, residence and merchant at Elizabeth, N. J., the remainder of his life. Mr. Cleveland continued active in the church and in the community, and was one of those of whom it can truthfully be said that life was spotless integrity, sustained by Christian fortitude. The funeral services were largely attended by citizens generally, at Saint James Methodist Episcopal Church, Elizabeth, N. J., Thursday, January 11, 1900, at 2.30 P. M., the church of which he was a founder, and long a most useful trustee and devoted member. Interment in his lot in Evergreen Cemetery near Elizabeth, N. J. Appropriate obituary notices appeared in the Elizabeth Journal and Elizabeth Herald. The last survivor of the 6th generation in his line. Mrs. Christina (Christopher) Cleveland still lives at Elizabeth, N. J. (1900).

Cleveland--Horton

On Sunday evening, Dec. 31, 1899, the last day of a memorable year, there was gathered at the residence of Miss Virginia Horton a quiet party, consisting of only the immediate family of the bride and groom, to celebrate the wedding of Miss Horton and N. Hubbard Cleveland. Outside the wind blew cold and dreary, inside all was warmth and happiness. The venerable Dr. E. Whitaker a life-long friend of Mr. Cleveland's family, and also of the family of the bride, whose father, Mr. Fuller Horton, was well known during life, performed the marriage rite which united the happy couple until "death do us part." We congratulate them in their new relations, and wish them many years of happiness. The happy couple repaired to the residence of Mr. Cleveland, where their home will be for the future.

Married

Southold, Dec 31, 1899, at the home of the bride, by the Rev. Epher Whitaker, D. D. Nathaniel Hubbard Cleveland and Helen Virginia Horton, only daughter of the late William Fuller Horton, the first organist of the Presbyterian church of Southold.

CHILDREN ASLEEP.

A SEA of little faces
Upturned as if in prayer,
I stood and gazed upon them
As they lay dreaming there.

A sea of little faces
All tranquil in their sleep,
As if an angel floated
Above the dimpled deep.

And touched each cheek with carmine,
Each lip with holy flame,
On which had scarcely died away
Their dear Redeemer's name.

Dream on your downy pillows,
Smile in your murmur'ing sleep,
And He who calmed the billows
Will guide you o'er the deep.

AUTHORS BY CHANCE.

Zangwill took to writing because he got sick of teaching.

Loneliness inspired Olive Schreiner in South Africa to write her novel of an African farm.

An Oxford tutor suggested to Mrs. Humphry Ward's mind the character of Robert Elsmere and so she wrote that famous novel.

Marie Corelli was training for a musical career when a curious experience led her to write "A Romance of Two Worlds."

Grant Allen is primarily a scientist, and was as much surprised as anyone when he found he could write a novel as well as a scientific treatise and make more money at it.

The stage experiences and roving life of Jerome K. Jerome suggested to him I caught in this lake some two or three years ago."

"Was there anyone with you at the time, Brother Smith?" asked the Pastor.

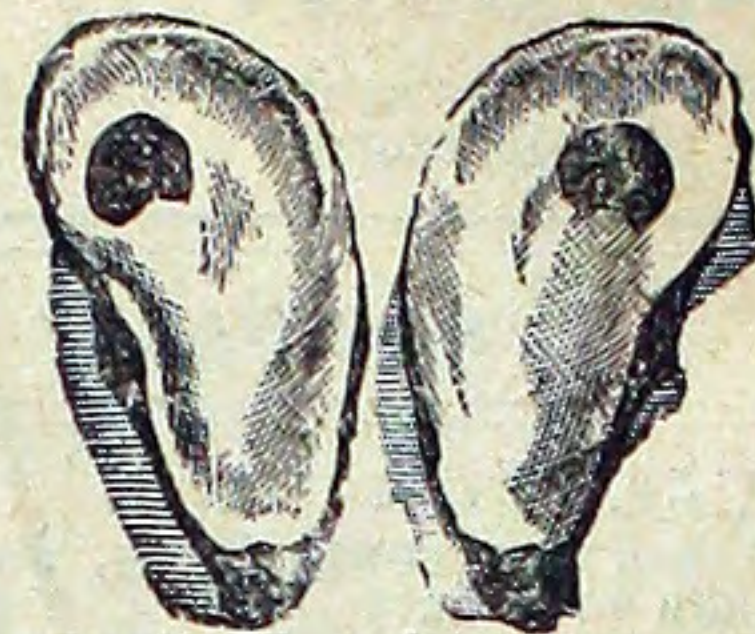

"There were two gentlemen fishing from the same boat with me that day, but I regret to say that both of them have since died. But, as we have agreed to tell only the truth, their testimony will not be needed in this case."

"Always dead," murmured the Pastor.

"If you remember, two years ago I could not get away to come up here at the regular time, and so had to let the club's annual pilgrimage pass, and see the members go away without me. But soon after the rest of you had returned I found an opportunity to leave my business for a couple of weeks and wrote to some friends out in Illinois asking them to accompany me. They replied that they would be glad to do so, and would meet me at Toronto.

"We met as agreed upon, and journeyed as I always do by way of Muskoka wharf, and thence by steamer to Barnesdale, and through the woods. I had previously arranged for guides and boats, and we found them waiting for us when we reached here.

"The first two days that we were here we had such exceptionally good fishing that my gear, which was simply worn out handling a rod. The covering was of heavy Russia leather or a dark bottle-green. Its edges and corners were protected by a lacework of oxidized silver, with here and there a monogram thrown into the pattern. The lock was formed outside in the shape of an elaborate coat of arms, and in the center of the lid this miniature coat of arms was duplicated in silver and more massive lines of silver.

Explanatory of Volume Four.

It is stated on page 6 that the "Genealogy is not perfect or complete" No truer statement has ever been made ^{concerning} ~~of~~ any published Genealogy. Its eminent fitness to this Genealogy is evident, and amply attested to by the uncertainties of both memory and records, the mutations of time and continuous additions to essential genealogic data

The generations in the ancestries of husbands and wives are bounded, successively, by parallels, thus: ||, to define where the male line continues downward

The Indexes of Volume 4 are intended to comprehend also names ^{not previously indexed} in the text of Volumes I, II and III

Abbreviations used in this Genealogy continued. See p. 7

To the King of the English (Anglorum), and to the Archbishop of York, and to all sons of Holy Mother Church, greeting. Let it be known to your Countie, (caritas) that I, by the counsel and admonition of Pope Calixtus II., and Turstin (Thurstan), archbishop of York, have founded a certain monastery of a religious order in Gysburne, to the honour of God and the holy Virgin Mary; and have there appointed regular canons, for the salvation of the souls of the King of England, and myself, my wife and children; and to the same church, and the service of God in it, have given all Gysburne, with all things pertaining to it; viz. twenty carucates of land, and two bovates Guisborough was visited ^{Aug 19} 1897 by several a party of Americans in the interest of this Genealogy. Taking the cars at York, changing at Darlington, and again at Middleboro, the diminutive train on the one-track ^{tramway} railway sped the ^{tourists} party through the verdure-clad hills and picturesque vales, immortalized for years by the descriptions of the various historians and topographers, a veritable "dream of Arcadia", until the towering ruin of the once grand Guisborough priory loomed into view. The Priory grounds - 10 acres are now a part of the Admiral ~~Chaloner~~ Chaloner estate of 10000 acres, and are enclosed by within a stone wall within whose gate a short distance away was another gate over which hung a bell. The porter explained that when he took charge ^{before} 15 years ago everything was in disorder, the ^{neighboring} builders having removed many of the sculptured stones for construction purposes. A long pathway, called "the monks' walk", with trees either side ^{which were} and ^{arched overhead} forming an arch over-head lead to the ^{historic remains of the} edifice. Some of the trees are 400 years old. The Priory is 400 feet long, ^{near} the window 70 ft. high, flanked by ^{towers} a pinnacle on either side 100 ft. high. Parts of the stone floor and bases of ^{the} ^{in front still} columns remain. One of the party visiting party being a descendant of Robert de whose tomb is in front of the inside of the rear wall. A little shop in the hamlet nearby vended views of interesting points in the ^{vicinage}, one of which, a photograph of the Priory ruin, now adorns our library. and is the frontispiece illustration of this volume.

For full text of this charter see Ord, 176-7. The Priory church was entirely destroyed by fire May 16 1289, rebuilt temp. Edward I, but there are no authentic particulars regarding its final demolition. Great Numbers of monasteries were shamefully dismantled by Henry VIII and Queen Mary, and the costly materials sold, ~~taken away and used for ordinary~~ building purposes. The Priory site, ~~was~~ granted to Thomas Chaloner (A.D. 1550), and still remains in that family.

Guisborough was visited Aug 19 1897 by a party of Americans in the interest of this Genealogy.

Taking the cars at York, changing at Darlington and again at Middleboro, ^{continuing} ~~then~~ ^{spending} ~~through~~ ^{picturesque} the hills and vales (immortalized by the historians and topographers of all times) a veritable "dream of Arcadia", until the towering ruin of the once-grand Gisborough Priory loomed in view. Its grounds are enclosed in a stone wall. The Priory is reached through ^{of Roman architecture, still remain} the gateway, and a long pathway, the famous "monk's walk", with trees (several of them 400 years old) on either side, ^{forming an arch} ~~and~~ ^{arched} overhead.

The Priory is 400 ft. long; the rear window flanked by pinnacles 100 ft. high, ^{exhibits artificial work of remarkable richness and elegance} Parts of the stone floor and of the front columns also ^{are seen} remain. To one of the towers a lineal descendant of Robert de Brus, whose ^{is} ~~was~~ ^{born} there, the visit was of increased interest. A little shop ~~in the hamlet nearby~~ ^{ruin} vended views of the vicinage, one of them a photograph of the Priory, adorns our library.

 Visit to Guisborough Eng.

The illustration of Guisborough Priory, Cleveland Yorkshire, England, is eminently appropriate to the history of the numerous and useful Cleveland family,
 for to this ecclesiastical establishment Thorkil de Clevecland + 17701 the founder of the clan, was a benefactor, undoubtedly, as were also his lineal descendant primogenitures in the male line down to the 7th generation, see pages 14-17, 2223-2227

There is no authority whatever for the present spelling of the word Guisborough
